Your Benefits as a Food Company Member of Food for Biodiversity

Food for Biodiversity

Our goal is to work together to achieve a measurable and lasting increase in biodiversity across the food sector.

01 Shaping Sustainable Biodiversity Strategies Together

Work with other companies to develop practical and economically viable biodiversity requirements. Common criteria enable more efficient implementation of measures, reduce costs along the supply chain, and provide greater planning certainty for companies and their suppliers.

02 Benefit from a Strong Food Sector Network

Connect with companies, food standards, scientific institutions, and civil society organisations.

03 Leverage Existing Expertise and Resources

Benefit from synergies within the network as well as existing expertise, proven solutions, and practical implementation experience. Regular webinars and expert events also provide opportunities to build knowledge, explore current topics in greater depth, and exchange ideas with experts and other companies.

04 Strengthen Credibility and Positioning

Make your commitment to biodiversity visible and embed it within a recognised industry network. Benefit from professional exchange and constructive feedback to further develop your activities and strengthen your credibility with relevant stakeholders.

05 Advocate Together for Better Policy Frameworks

Join forces with other food sector stakeholders and bring shared priorities to policymakers. In this way, the association advocates for policy frameworks that support effective biodiversity action across the food sector.

What does membership mean for your company?

- Active participation in a working group
- Participation in the annual general meeting
- Commitment to the Roll-out Strategy for the Basic Set
